

GEO- AND BIOPOLITICS IN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

Speakers

Christian Abrahamsson (Universitetet i Oslo)

Mark Bassin (Södertörns Högskola)

Patricia Chiantera-Stutte (Università degli Studi di Bari)

Ulrike Jureit (Hamburger Institut für Sozialforschung)

Ian Klinke (University of Oxford)

Claudio Minca (Wageningen Universiteit)

David T. Murphy (Anderson University)

Richard Powell (University of Cambridge)

Jemima Repo (University of Newcastle)

James W. Scott (Itä-Suomen yliopisto)

Pascale Siegrist (Universität Konstanz)

Marius Turda (Oxford Brookes)

Sven Wallenstein (Södertörns Högskola)

Programme

This two-day workshop will bring together geographers, historians and political scientists to reflect on the origins and intersection of modern geo- and biopolitics. Day 1 presents research on the intellectual and political history of geo- and biopolitics. Day 2 offers discussion of a new translation of the German geographer Friedrich Ratzel's (1844-1904) (in)famous essay on Lebensraum.

When: 25-26 May 2017

Where: Day 1: School of Geography and the Environment, Day 2: St John's College

Registration: Places are limited. Please register by contacting ian.klinke@ouce.ox.ac.uk

Organised by: Ian Klinke and Mark Bassin

Funded by: St John's College Research Centre, Transformations and Tech Natures Clusters